Tampa, July 30, 2015 – The USF Contemporary Art Museum (USFCAM) is pleased to present the exhibition A Family Affair, open August 24 through December 12, 2015. The exhibition highlights seven artists who explore personal identity and family relationships through photography, video, performance and animation.

The artists of A Family Affair adopt a range of approaches, from documentary to fiction, to articulate visions of self within interpersonal and historical family contexts as well as broader frameworks of race, class and gender, often collaborating with family members to realize their art.

Renee Cox is known for her provocative photographic works that overturn race and gender stereotypes. In Olympia’s Boyz (2001), a 14-ft-wide Cibachrome print mounted on aluminum, Cox restages Manet’s iconic painting Olympia (1863), replacing the image’s central figures—a white prostitute and a black maid—with herself, an empowered black matriarch in the nude, and her biracial sons.

LaToya Ruby Frazier’s documentary photographs explore the relationships between three generations of women—Frazier, her mother and grandmother—against the backdrop of Braddock, Pennsylvania, a struggling industrial borough outside of Pittsburgh. Along with a selection of Frazier’s black-and-white photographs, the exhibition features Detox (Braddock U.P.M.C.) (2011), a video that addresses healthcare inequity and environmental contamination in Braddock.

Kalup Linzy’s Queen Rose Family Tree (2014-2015), a new installation of photographic collages commissioned for A Family Affair by USFCAM, details a fictional family tree that resembles Linzy’s actual family and includes invented cousins Taiwan and Kaye Braswell. Embodying the Braswell cousins and others from the tree in video and photographs, Linzy performs original songs and soap operatic narratives investigating love, loss and the challenges of artistic and sexual self-realization.

Jacolby Satterwhite creates surreal 3D animations that combine his dance performances with animated drawings of everyday objects and inventions by his mother, Patricia Satterwhite. His Country Ball, 1989-2012, draws on video of a 1989 family picnic.

A Family Affair includes individual and collaborative works by Hank Willis Thomas and Deborah Willis. A collaborative self-portrait, Sometimes I See Myself In You (2008), merges the faces of both artists, who are son and mother. In Words To Live By (2008), Thomas and Willis pair images of the mouths of ethnically diverse friends and family with proverbs that offer advice for living wisely.
During the exhibition Dutch-born, Detroit-based photographer Corine Vermeulen will be in residence at USFCAM. Vermeulen will undertake a three-month community-based project in collaboration with the University Area Community Development Corporation, photographing residents of the University Area neighborhood adjacent to USF’s Tampa campus in exchange for stories of community and family life. An installation of Vermeulen’s photographs and the accompanying stories will accumulate at USFCAM over the course of the exhibition.

A Family Affair is curated by Associate Curator Megan Voeller and organized by USFCAM.

Exhibition Sponsors: The exhibition catalogue for A Family Affair is supported in part by a grant from the Elizabeth Firestone Graham Foundation. Corine Vermeulen’s residency is made possible with assistance from Caspers Company and Sharmila and Vivek Seth.
